

So there I stood, once again ready to abseil. "20, that's easy," I thought to myself. Tension started to build as I knew I was the first person to go. My mouth dropped as I took my first step towards it. I felt excited, confident and a little nervous all at the same time.

As I went up the ladder more and more tension came; but it stopped when I was clipped into my harness. I was now told to lean back over the drop. I could hear everybody cheering me on down below, then I just went for it! I was walking down the wall. The wind made it feel like I was going to get blown off, but I wasn't, so I kept on going until I hit the bottom.

At the bottom I untied the ropes. Uneasily I heard someone shout "look out!" Suddenly a shoe fell from the top of the abseiling tower and almost landed on my head. Continuing to untie the ropes I thought 'why was I a little nervous?'

Harvey