

So there I stood there, with my harness tightly strapped on, and my helmet on my head. I stared at the top of 21 metre tall abseiling tower, waiting for my turn. As people went down the tower crying, they were putting me off. 5 minutes later it would be my turn - people Karabiners off. I sat there in the roofed hut trembling with fear

“Next!” Shouted the instructor; it was now my turn. As I climbed up the ladder, the higher I went up the ladder, the more horrifying it was, my legs were like jelly and butterflies were in my stomach. I had set a target for this activity - would I be able to reach it?

My shoe gracefully fell to the ground, woosh. The leaves made a miniature atomic -bomb. Now I was REALLY frightened...
