Teaching methods and learning style

A range of teaching and learning styles will be used to teach PSHE.

No crude language.

No raised voices/shouting.

No talking over people.

Show respect for another's views, even when disagreeing with them.

Keep comments subject-specific, as opposed to personal.

'Ice-breaker' activities and clear ground rules regarding discussions will be put in place in order to ensure a safe, supportive and positive learning environment. Examples of discussion guidelines may include rules such as:

Pupils will learn research and study techniques and have the opportunity to engage in investigations and problem-solving activities.

All pupils will be encouraged to take part in charity work and volunteering, as well as organising school events such as assemblies and open evenings.

Dussindale Primary School will use visiting speakers, such as health workers and the police, to broaden the curriculum and share their real life experiences. Any such speakers will be closely monitored by the class teacher who should use their professional judgement to end a speech if they consider it to contravene any of the aims of this policy or the values of the school.

Dussindale Primary School will consult with the local community on matters related to PSHE to ensure that local issues are covered in lessons.

Pupils' questions will, unless inappropriate, be answered respectfully by the teacher.

Timetabling and cross-faculty involvement

Dussindale Primary School will use direct teaching via timetabled lessons.

PSHE will be taught in discrete curriculum time, delivered by form tutors and other staff.

Dussindale Primary School will ensure cross-curricular learning through discussion between faculties, for example, the physical education department, form teachers and other relevant areas.

There is an element of PSHE in pastoral care and we will ensure that PSHE and pastoral care teams work together to ensure that pupils feel comfortable indicating that they may be vulnerable and at risk.

Reporting and confidentiality

Every lesson should reinforce that, if pupils have any personal concerns or wish to talk about any of the issues raised in the lesson; they should feel comfortable consulting their PSHE teacher or another member of staff about this.

Pupils will be encouraged to have an open dialogue regarding any such issues with the PSHE teacher but must understand that their teacher may not be able to keep certain information confidential, for example, where there are safeguarding issues raised. When a pupil does wish to speak to a teacher about any such issue, the teacher should ensure that the pupil is aware of this responsibility.

Tailoring PSHE

Discussion and other activities will be used in initial PSHE lessons in order to ascertain 'where pupils are' in terms of their knowledge and understanding of various subjects. The teaching programme will then be adjusted to reflect the composition of the class with regard to this.

Teaching will take into account the ability, age, readiness and cultural backgrounds of all young people in the class and will be tailored accordingly.

Adaptations will be made for those for whom English is a second language to ensure that all pupils can fully access PSHE educational provision.

All pupils with special educational needs will receive PSHE education, with content and delivery tailored to meet their individual needs.
